

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

A pneumatic tire comprises a tread portion arranging a plurality of blocks each provided with at least one sub-groove having a special groove shape and can improve the wear resistance in correspondence to the difference of input directions of external forces generated by the difference of the tire mounting position.